

CHAPTER VI

BIBLIOGRAPHY

- 1} Brilliant, G. E. (1981). The Epidemiology of blindness Survey in Nepal
SEVA Foundation, USA.

This book deals about the over all situation of blindness in Nepal. Causes of blindness, distribution of blindness by age and sex. It has also explained the distribution of blindness by region. Infact, it the report of the 1981 Nepal Blindness Survey.

- 2} Kupfer, C. The international agency for the prevention of blindness (1988):
World blindness and its prevention Volume 3, Oxford University Press, New York , Melbourne.

This book deals about the world blindness situation, list of the International organization who are working in the field of prevention of blindness and action being taken to prevent blindness in different regions of the world. It has also deals about the operation research in cataract blindness prevention and mobilization resources and political will: Convincing governments that prevention of blindness is cost effective.

- 3} Green, A. (1994). An introduction to health planning in developing countries.
New York. Oxford University presses.

This book is about planning. which has explained mainly planning for primary health care in developing countries It includes situation analysis, priority, goal and objective setting option appraisal, programming, implementation and monitoring and evaluation.

4} Ellwein, L.B. & Kupfer C. (1995). Bulletin of the World Health Organization Volume 73, Number 5 Strategic issue in preventing cataract blindness in developing countries.

This article describes about the problem of cataract blindness at present in the developing countries. It has also explained strategy to prevent blindness in the developing countries. In strategy to reduce the blindness, it has mentioned about training for the health personnel, facility management, social marketing, partnership and evaluation.

5} Javitt, J .C. & Fang Wang (1996) Blindness due to cataract: Epidemiology and prevention: Annual reviews of Public health

This article deals about predisposing factors of cataract, situation of cataract blindness in the world, problem of cataract blindness in the developing countries and up coming problem in the near future due to increasing life expectancy. It has also explained about the preventive measures of cataract and reducing blindness of cataract.

6} Javitt, J₂C Cataract pages 635-644 (1993): Disease control priorities in developing countries. Edited by Deant. Jamison, W. Honery Mosley, and Anthony R. Measham: Oxford Medical publication, Oxford University presses.

This chapter explains about the cataract, sign, symptoms, and definition of cataract, public health importance of cataract, cataract surgery in the developing countries and associate factors of cataract. It has also explained about the economic return of cataract surgery and cost effectiveness or cost utility of cataract surgery.

7} Brilliant, G. E., Lepkowski, J M, Beatriz Zurita, & Thulasiraj R.D (1991). Arch Ophthalmology Volume 109, page 584-589: Social determinants of cataract surgery utilization in South India.

This is a research article which deals four Health Education approaches i.e. House to house visits by an Aphakic Motivators, House to house visits by a basic eye health worker, Screening at central location in the village and mass media campaign at weekly market place. The article explained that among the best Health education approach is utilization of Aphakic Motivators.

8} Mark, B, & Dungeon Patricia A. Carr (1997). Program Planning for Health Education and Promotion second edition.

This book is about program planning in health education and health promotion. It deals in details about community analysis, targeted assessment, program plan development, implementation and evaluation.

9} Elwes L.& Simnett (1996). Promoting Health , A practical guide 3rd edition. London Bailliere Tindall.

This book is primarily written for health promoters and deals with what, why, who, and how of health promotion. It starts with a description of the major influences on health, inequalities in health, and approaches of health promotion.

PLA notes (Notes on participatory learning and action (1999). Sustainable agriculture and rural livelihoods program of the international institute for environmental development iied 3 Endsleigh street London UK.

This is a note on Participatory learning and action. It shares idea about community participation, learning from the community, and community development through action. It shares the experience and ideas from the actual field.